Three British Warships Are Sunk in North Sea By German Submarine

Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy, Cruisers Valued at $1,000,000 and Manned by 2,565 Men Are Sunk—Part of Crews Saved by H.M.S. Lowestoft and Division of Destroyers

London, Sept. 22. (4:30 p.m.)—The British warships Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy have been sunk in the North Sea by a German submarine, according to an announcement given out by the official bureau this afternoon.

Continuing the announcement says that a considerable part of the crews of the vessels were saved by H.M.S. Lowestoft and by a division of torpedo boat destroyers. Trawlers and their boats also aided in the work of rescue.

The Aboukir was torpedoed first and the Hogue and Cressy were in close to her and were standing by to save her crew when they also were torpedoed.

The Cressy, Capt. Robert W. Johnson; the Aboukir, Capt. John I. Drummond; and the Hogue, Capt. Wilmet S. Nicholson, were late type cruisers. They were armored cruisers of a comparatively obsolete type, having been built in 1904. The crews of the casualties among their ships will be published as soon as they are known.

The Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy are sister ships, being small armored cruisers of the Cressy class, of which figured in the naval program of 1904-1910. They were commissioned in the latter year and in 1912. The other three are the Euryalus, Hanchester and Surin. At the outbreak of the war they represented the last word in armored cruisers of their class. The Hogue and Cressy were built in 1904 and the Aboukir in 1905. They were built at Harland & Wolff, Ltd., Glasgow, Scotland.
